My computer is a very potato ones, so I can't do any guessing. The runs fine until I do multiple clicks and it crashed. Need a lot of fixes instead of new items, so keep it up! A little is better than nothing at all. But I will change to No if the problem is still not fix in a long-term.. One of the best games under 5€.. Its a great mod and It's fun but do you think any chance in the later stages of the mods development maby add a campain?. Fun, Fast, And Cheep!. I tried my best to enjoy this game but I can't.. That Pac-Man minigame was boring and slow, and then my game crashed when I entered the swamp. Got a refund.. horrible service, dont use this, use face it instead, ESEA double charges people, and then when they make a paypal dispute and win it to get their hard earned money back, ESEA bans you from their service. Also has mined bitcoin on their users computers without them knowing. Also moves up female teams to better leagues even though there were many males teams that out preformed them. Whats even sadder is that they tried to pay people 2000 dollars a month to use their service only and not faceit, with an NDA, meaning that cannot telll people that they are being paid to use just ESEA. SO esea wants to make people think that pros and other popular figures are using esea becasue they want to , and not because they are getting paid.....how pathetic.. Damn good game, played against bots for a bit to train. Very nice movement system

Controls were VERY counter-intuitive, but the light/shadow mechanic was cool.

Settings were weird, gameplay was stiff, and you die instantly.. Shogo Mobile Armor Division is a first person shooter created by Monolith and was the very first game to use the Lithtech engine. It's a rather unique game stylistically and in terms of concept. You play as a pilot named Sanjuro who both controls a mech suit and fights on foot in a war against other mechs.

Shogo is heavily inspired by Japanese anime. To the point where I think it harms the game overall. The game looks very ugly visually and you can especially see it with the characters, who all look overly cartoony and somewhat disturbing. The story is also rather confusing and convoluted. It's not helped by how all of the characters come off as overly obnoxious, especially the main character. I understand it's to fit the style of the game but it feels really cringey while playing. However the soundtrack is fairly decent and does match the style of the levels pretty well.

You have two distinctive modes of gameplay. On foot and in a mech. On foot gameplay is fairly standard for the time the game was released in. Enemies mostly stand still and your weapons have very little feedback. The animations are also all janky. When piloting your mech the levels all look smaller like you're in miniature cities but the game still diverts you into generic corridor shooting sections that feel identical to the on foot sections. There is one critical problem with the gameplay of Shogo that becomes immediately apparent and frustrates the player. "Critical hits". In Shogo randomly while hitting enemies or while enemies attack the player, critical hits occur. It basically means that at complete random you can kill enemies more effectively. However you very rarely notice your own critical hits due to how generally overpowered all of your weapons are. You mostly notice how you suddenly die while entering rooms out of nowhere. This causes the game to feel very claustrophobic and not very fun to run and gun through. This isn't helped by how the game is very linear and there's no real way to avoid it.

Shogo isn't an ambitious game nor a particularly polished one. It's a tech demo first and foremost, designed to advertise and promote Monolith's engine. It pales in comparison to other games released in 1998 like Half-Life. And while it does have a small loyal fanbase it's unfortunately a game that's really hard for me to recommend to people. Fortunately Monolith learned from their mistakes on Shogo and dramatically improved with their later shooters like No One Lives Forever and Aliens Vs Predator 2. Here's hoping both make it to Steam one day.. Hello Friends! I write to you on this game next for one of my reviews. While the other game in the series, Doodle Kingdom, does not work on my pc, this game does. It works great. The game involves matching elements to create new elements. At its core, this is a puzzle game. So here is my pro/cons list:

PROS:

- Puzzle game
- Works on windows 10 (for me at least)
- Quests to do after finishing main game.

CONS:

- Although not a con for me, some people might not like this is a mobile port to pc game.

With only one con for me I found for this game, I had quite fun playing this game. Recommended for fun puzzle gaming.. Refunded after 30 minutes. Very casual little ATC game with virtually no simulation aspects. Manic and frenzied with multiple aircraft on runways allowed and no airspace separation rules at all. Very limited commands to aircraft. Would recommend for $5 or less.

5/10. Great Local Co-op game for the vive.. If you like small short time 2D games, this is the right choice for you:

Being in a comic like 2D world, that reminds a little bit of worms, you control one of five fighter planes with each different playstyle and abilities.

Armed with MGs, Rockets, Lasers and Bombs, you have to shoot down the enemies and survive as long as you can.

The game gives you a leveling system, achievements and with that the ability to customize your choice of abilities you use.

Ingame you not only fly and shoot but have basic physical elements like altitude, speed and afterburner. If you get too slow while flying up, your engine will stall and you will fall from the sky. Also you can find one use weapons on the map, that will give you rockets, EMP fields and shields.

The game has a lot of game modes like Deathmatch, Team Deathmatch, last man standing and some form of capture the ball mode.

Even if it hasnt that big community anymore it still has usable full functional bots, which arent that big challenge, but still decent and dangerous.

Being able to be played with only the mouse, it is a nice game on mobile devices and a short game for long traveling.
